Regus announces partnership with Dutch train operator, NS, to open Regus business lounges at train stations across the Netherlands

Amsterdam – 27 February 2012: Regus today announces a new partnership between Regus and Nederlandse Spoorwegen ('NS'), the Dutch trains operator, to offer Dutch train travellers a better way to work on the go. It is the latest in a series of strategic launches by Regus across Europe in response to the needs of a growing number of mobile workers.

Under the agreement, Regus and NS will launch Regus | NS station2station workspaces at stations across the NS fast train network in the Netherlands. The workspaces will offer travellers walk-in access to business lounges, secure wifi, workstations and meeting rooms with video-communication facilities. Travellers will be able to touch down for as little as 10 minutes to print or send emails, think, do paperwork, or link up with colleagues and customers. The launch follows ground-breaking agreements with SNCF, the French trains operator, and Shell, earlier this year which have seen European travellers gain access to professional workspaces and state of the art business facilities while on the move.

Mark Dixon, CEO of Regus, said, "This agreement with NS signals the end of mobile workers being forced to work from cramped, coffee-stained tables while travelling. Regus business lounges will allow workers to access technology such as smartphones, tablets and the cloud at key transport locations and will provide passengers with access to a professional work environment wherever they need to be. In this way, Regus business lounges will improve the way people work, travel, and, therefore, live their daily lives. And they will provide businesses with new ways to offer flexible and productive working options, leading to a reduced cost base and improved bottom line.

NS CEO Michiel Noy adds: "By combining the strengths of NS and Regus we can give our customers more control over their time and mobility. Our network of fast train connections and knowledge of our passengers combined with Regus's numerous locations and their in-depth knowledge of mobile workers needs and wants means travellers get the best of both worlds whenever they are on the move."

Note to Editors

Regus and NS will launch the first Regus | NS station2station Workspace at Amersfoort Station in May. The planned network of workspaces will include

Haarlem, Leiden, Maastricht, Den Haag and 's-Hertogenbosch stations.
